

People just like you could be investigated by HMRC

That's why you need to consider the benefits of our Premier Protection Service

- HMRC do not only investigate those who avoid tax. Every tax payer may be chosen for investigation and you can be chosen at random for an enquiry.
- Tax investigations can be deeply intrusive, stressful and costly. They can quickly spiral into time consuming and costly affairs and drag on for months or even years.
- HMRC does not always get it right and, as the taxpayer, you have to prove your innocence.
- HMRC's increased powers have led to an explosion in new cases, and an extra 30% in tax collected in 3 years.
- Even if you are found to owe no tax, you still have to pay the fees incurred in handling your case.

Premier Protection in practice

A client who owned rental property with an income of £25,000 was subjected to a full enquiry by HMRC. HMRC issued several letters asking for further information and requested to meet with the client. The enquiry ran for 11 months with final professional fees exceeding £3,600; all of which were paid through the service.

HMRC claimed that when an individual sold his house for a second time within only a few years that he was trading .... and they wanted tax on his gain. The case was successfully defended and no tax payable. The gain was properly covered by the CGT Principal Private Residence Exemption.

Why you need Premier Protection

Our Premier Protection Service has been designed to deal with HMRC's new powers and to protect you against the unexpected costs of a full tax enquiry, an individual aspect enquiry or non-written enquiry.

We're involved from the start of any investigation making it more likely to escape paying any extra tax or penalties. PLUS No 'excess' and no 'unfair' clauses.

Our Premier Protection service will pay the costs for us, your accountants, who you know and trust, to deal with your tax case with you for as long as it takes to resolve the situation, up to £100,000 per HMRC Investigation.
